EVENING GOWN

It's awfully smart in night-time New York to play among the white lights attired in brilliant red and blue—gowns, dear!—not lights! Here's an evening gown of Mikado red Roshinara crepe, with marvelous Lithuanian embroidery woven in pearl beads! This one-piece frock is really a drape—beginning at the back, dropped low, and carried to the back of the corsege to end in a Watteau train.

ROBERT S. MCCORMICK AMERICAN DIPLOMAT DIES OF PNEUMONIA

Chicago, April 16.—Robert S. McCormick, American diplomat, and father of United States Senator Medill McCormick, of Illinois, and Robert McCormick, one of the editors of the Chicago Tribune, died of pneumonia today at his home in Hinsdale, a suburb. His health which forced him to retire as United States ambassador to France in 1907, had been with him much of the time since.

Mr. McCormick was born July 26th, 1849, in Rockbridge county, Virginia, the son of William S. McCormick, who, with his brother, Cyrus H. Sr., and Leander Buleander, shortly afterward same to Chicago.

Members of this family—the Virginia grandfather and especially his eldest son, Cyrus—developed the reaper from the crude beginnings to the great factor it afterwards became in farm life. Robert S. McCormick, became a collector of books and Napoleonic biographies and etchings. In 1876, Mr. McCormick was married to Miss Katherine Medill, daughter of Joseph Medill, who founded The Tribune.

Mr. McCormick served three years as first secretary of the United States legation in London under minister Robert T. Lincoln.

In 1901, President McKinley appointed him minister to Austria to succeed Addison C. Harrison and during his services the ministry was raised to an ambassadorship. In 1903, President Roosevelt transferred Mr. McCormick to be Ambassador to Russia.

Panic Active Aid to Disease.
Panic, in truth, is always the most potent enemy upon which disease can call for aid. For panic not merely cripples the mind and the morale; it has directly disastrous consequences to the body itself. It deranges the digestion, it strains the heart, it slows the circulation of the blood. Thus it weakens the whole system, predisposing to infection by disease and making it more difficult to escape outcome if infection strikes.

Self-Denial Went for Nothing.
A young woman was staying at Jack's home, and seeing a box of candy on her table, he went into her room and helped himself. His mother told him how wrong it was, and said he must apologize. That night, before going into her room, he was heard to murmur: "If I has to 'pologize, wish I took more than one piece."

Try to Read Wisely.
The habit of reading wisely is by no means an easy one to acquire, but unless acquired, the mind is likely to become so cloyed with literary sweet meats or satiated with academic treatises that it revolts indignantly, and for the time at least refuses to respond to the demands which habit places upon it.

The Razor in Civilization.

Busts of the Caesars show them to have been clean-shaven. Men in the eighteenth century relied still further on the barber's art, for they shaved their heads as well. Hogarth has painted a beau of this period who by some chance had his wig removed which gives him the look of an elderly baby. The uncouth appearance of the barbarians, which shocked the Romans, was due a good deal to the neglect of these wild men to dress their hair.

Useful Palm.

In the lowlands of the delta of the Orinoco river the natives build huts suspended between trunks of Mauritia flexuosa, a palm. They also eat its fruits, its farinaceous pith, its saccharine juice, and use the fibers of its leaf stems for making ropes, hammocks, etc.

His Favorite Dish.

A Chinese merchant, being questioned as to his favorite article of food, prefaced his reply by stating that many foreign dishes which we consider appetizing are disgusting to the Chinese. With the way thus prepared, he announced that of all foods he cared most for a stew made of a particular kind of snake, costing from six to eight dollars.
